Which link should I use, the code search or the downloadable file?

We recommend that you use the Procedure Code Search as this is always the most up to date.

Procedure Code Search

Search by: ☒ Procedure Code/Description ☐ Modifier Code

Enter the code or part of the description:

Code Category:

Code Categories

(The code must be the exact code, but the description may be any part of the description. For example searching on "nose" will return all procedures with "nose" in any part of the description. Searching by description may take longer for results to return because of the number of words in every description that must be searched.)

Where can I determine if an authorization is required?

The indicators box once you have searched the codes is where you can determine if authorization is needed. The indicator name will be listed as Prior Authorization. The indicator value is in the next column, and it will say yes or no. There may be multiple prior auth indicators so be sure you have the most recent one via the dates in the following columns.

Is there more than one prior authorization box?

There may be more than one prior authorization indicator box you will want to determine it is the most current one with the most current start date. The end date may read 12/31/2999, a default date used to indicate that the prior authorization indicator is still current. Also take note that in some cases the PA indicator is claim type specific an example would be an outpatient surgery may not require an authorization however the professional claim does require an authorization.

Indicator Name	Indicator Value	Modifier Code	Start Date	End Date
Prior Authorization	N-No		01/01/2021	12/31/2999
Procedure Tooth Requirement Indicator	N-TOOTH CODE NOT REQUIRED		01/01/2021	12/31/2999
PROC_COINS_IND	N-No		01/01/2021	12/31/2999

Where can I see what modifiers are allowed with a specific code?

There is a specific associated modifiers box below the indicators box. This will tell you whether the modifier is included or excluded. Modifier can sometimes make a difference if an authorization is needed.
